After pondering this one each and every time it comes up, I thought I'd see if anyone here has a definite answer. When I research this, I find conflicting ways to write it, even at major banking sites. Does anyone know for sure if the preferred version is:

401k -- this seems to be the most common

401(k) -- this may be technically the most correct but not as commonly used

401K

401(K)

I use the IRS site for most financial formatting questions. They show it 401(k) and that's the way I always use it in my transcripts.

Thanks, Julia. I guess you don't get much more official than the IRS, right? I guess I'll start writing it that way from here on out.

...just a little detail, but good to have an "official" format. Thanks for looking this up and providing it for everyone!
